Geologists plan trips, papers during BYU meet

A skull of the largest land mammal that ever lived is on display here Friday and Saturday during the annual meeting of the Rocky Mountain Section of the Geological Society of America.

James A. Jensen, BYU curator of geology, obtained the huge skull from the American Museum of Natural History in New York. He was on a month and a half trip to the East and Midwest to acquire material for a BYU geology museum, which is still on the planning board.

THE SKULL is from a rhinoceros called "Baluchitherium" by geologists. The monster stood 18 feet at the shoulder and according to geological dating tables roamed the earth 25 million years ago. It came from Mongolia. Mr. Jensen pointed out, was a vegetarian and obtained its food by browsing through trees.

This specimen was found in 1922 along with three skeletons, he said.

Rodeo roundup ends Western Week events

Arizona and Rodeo Clubs are swinging to bring western fun to students as Western Week draws to a close.

FRIDAY NIGHT, the annual BYU Rodeo will end at 8 p.m. at the Provo Fairgrounds. Admission will be by activity card for students, $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Yellow slips needed to get grad tickets

A yellow biographical card will be an important item to 1962 graduate who wants to obtain tickets to graduation services from the Alumni House next week.

TICKET distribution begins Monday at 1 p.m. and will continue throughout the week. Each single graduate is entitled to four commencement tickets and four baccalaureate tickets when he presents his last BYU activity card—and the biographical card, completely filled out.

Married students are allowed six tickets for each service. All students are requested not to ask for more tickets than they will need.

THE YELLOW biographical cards have been sent to all graduating students with a letter containing information about graduation tickets. Any student who did not receive a card may get one at the Alumni House. No tickets will be given to anyone who does not have a card.

Saturday at 2 p.m. the second half of the rodeo will be held at the fairgrounds.

Cowgirls and cowboys from 13 universities and colleges will compete in the rodeo events. The events will include barrel racing and goat tying for the girls.

COWBOYS WILL compete in Tickets, by section only, are available for all sections of the Smith Fieldhouse except the green sections, the choir sections and the section north of the playing floor.

A SPECIAL row of seats has been reserved for crippled parents of graduates or those who cannot climb stairs. Tickets for these seats can be obtained by presenting a letter signed by a physician and written on his stationery.

A graduate can send another person to get his tickets if the person presents a note authorizing him to pick up the tickets and the biographical card.

Western dance scheduled for Saturday fun

The annual Western Week activities will conclude Saturday with a real, genuine, western "stompin'" dance in the east gym of the Fieldhouse.

Music will be provided by The Sundowners, an original western group from Cedar City, according to Blaine Jarvis, Mesa, Ariz., chairman of the dance.

WESTERN WEAR is preferred, although tuxedo wearers will not be turned down. Prizes will be awarded for the best "chicken caller," and the best "hog caller." In addition to prizes for the best dressed cowhands and gals.

Prizes for the best beads will also be awarded.

ADMISSION is 50 cents to the student body, and the orchestra will start playing at 9:30 p.m.

The rodeo will be held Friday at 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon, South University and 1200 South.

saddle bronc, bareback and bull riding. Bull dogging, calf roping and tying also will be events during the two-day show.

Saturday night an old-fashioned Arizona stomp will be held in the east gym of the Smith Fieldhouse.

Reigning over the entire Western Week have been the Rodeo royalty, queen Dianne Cluff, physical education major from Albuquerque, N. M., and her attendants Sandra Lamm, Grand Junction, Colo., and Margot Allen, Altadena, Calif.

250 must register for event

Plans are moving forward for the annual Leadership Conference to be held at Colter Bay, Wyo., Sept. 14-17.

Lloyd Johnson is chairman of the conference.

This year's conference will host some 250 BYU student leaders from three general areas of the school.

THE FIRST area includes leaders from student government, major committee heads, IOC officers, AWS representatives, Daily Universe, Banyan and Wye Magazine representatives.

The second area involves head residents, dorm presidents and officials of housing. The third group will be one representative from each student organization.

Price of the conference is $18. Students planning to go should register with Mrs. Elva Davis in 170 Clark Student Service Center by Tuesday.

Exemption test will be given for History 170

An exemption test for History 170 is scheduled to be given May 18 at 3 p.m. in the testing service office, B-238 Smoot Bldg.

Students who pass the test are exempt from taking History 170 which is a graduation requirement.

THIS TEST may be taken by any student who feels he has a good history background and can score higher than 80 per cent of the freshman students taking the test, said Lynn Owens, psychologist in the BYU testing service.

SWINGIN' N' STOMPIN'—Climax for Western week will be a dance for students in the east gym of the Fieldhouse.

Dressed for the old-fashioned stomp are these BYU students.

Campus and Controversy

These columns are open to the comments of the readers. To receive early publication, letters should be typewritten, double spaced and should not exceed 300 words. Letters will be published at the discretion of the editor.

Paper lauded

The point that Prof. Nicholas missed yesterday (Comment & Controversy, May 10) is that although no "student is inconvenienced by our adoption of a plus and minus grading system," neither was the student given consideration when it came to informing the university at large about the grade changes—and about the tuition increase.

THE FACULTY was informed through the weekly University Bulletin about the grading system change, but no formal provisions were made for passing this information on to those most vitally affected—the students.

Further, the tuition raise announcement took the form of an upward alteration of figures in the 1962-63 Catalog of Courses—again without recognizing the right of those most directly affected to know what happens.

NOT THAT ANYONE was attempting to employ "subterfuge, sneak attacks, clever timing or the like," but it is more as if the studentbody was relegated to a secondary role in which its importance to the university community was being minimized; in which it was, in effect, "not worth bothering about." In public relations, this is called shoddy treatment of an important public.

As a student newspaper, the Daily Universe should be lauded for standing up and demanding a little consideration for the students by all other members of the university community.

Certainly, when Prof. Nicholas feels he has been handled badly he is anxious to obtain for himself his rightful place in the scheme of things. Students are no exception. I think they learn better, too, when they have the idea that the university is thinking about them.

False advertising?

I am not an American citizen, but if I were, I would be as disgusted as my wife is, about your advertising for Heaps-A-Pizza. I refer to such ads as the one in the April 19 edition of the Universe.

THERE WAS a picture of Washington, and underneath a slogan which read, "As father of my country, I advise all my children to eat pizza from Heaps." Other American figures used for these ads have been Benjamin Franklin, Eisenhower and Nixon. We are surprised that these ads were allowed to run.

Almost certainly Heaps-A-Pizza is a very fine place, and we enjoy reading the Universe every day, but we do feel that they do an injustice to Heaps-A-Pizza, your paper, and the great men that they "use."

YOU KNOW, it really isn't

Editorial...

Why have 2 standards?

Men have hairy legs.

Men on the BYU campus wear bermuda shorts. They wear them to the library. They wear them all over campus.

Girls on the BYU campus often have pretty legs. They don't wear bermuda shorts to the library. They do sometimes wear them on campus. But according to dress standards they shouldn't.

Is it because girls have prettier legs that they aren't supposed to wear bermuda shorts? Maybe the men at BYU should shave their legs. Then they wouldn't be allowed to wear bermudas either.

good advertising anyway—we all studied that kind of false advertising (riding on the coat tails of a name) in Freshman English. Are you planning on using David O. McKay—that would be a real winner.

We have never written to the Universe before, and perhaps there were bigger issues we could have written about, but please don't give me the opportunity to say, "So that's how they honor their great men!"

So we also take issue over the new recording by "The Chipmunks" called "America," but then you can't do anything about that. Besides, people would think that we were fanatics.

Hits editorial

We disagree with editorial "Check Credentials" in the May 7 issue of the Universe, and we further feel that the writer (who remains anonymous) was prejudiced and ill-informed. If anyone's credentials should be checked it should be those of the writer of the editorial.

IT IS EVIDENT, as we see it, that the editor wrote the article mainly to cut down the disc jockey. The editor's statement that the disc jockey made "Off beat insinuations," and started "uncalled for static" is wholly untrue. The disc jockey's attitude was not "beligrent"—he merely spoke in self-defense.

We might further add that he acted very honorably under diverse circumstances. The point in question is not that of the character or "credentials" of the disc jockey, rather it's the underlying factors in Friday night's incident.

THE EDITOR SHOWS his lack of confidence in BYU students and ignorance of the situation when he states that the incident "resulted in a near brawl." The reason for the editor's support of Faddis: that "It was his decision as an elected studentbody officer in the best interests of the school," is not justifiable.

Just because he is an elected studentbody officer does not mean that his actions were in the best interests of the school—in fact, Faddis went against the will of the majority of the students there. (Let's analyze what Faddis did and the apparent underlying motives for his action.)

FADDIS CUT OFF the record hop because he felt that a large amount of money "would be lost through non-support." This large amount of money amounted to $15 payable to the disc jockey and $20 payable to the Y's Men band (of which Faddis is a vocal member). Faddis was angry because the students favored the record hop over the Y's Men band.

The Y's Men band was not paying for itself, so rather than eliminate it, Faddis chose to eliminate the band's competition. The record hop seemed more appropriate to the students at the casual "Country Fair." Faddis, who is so concerned about saving the studentbody "a large amount of money," could have saved the Y's Men for a more formal occasion.

"Studentbody Social Vice-President Del Faddis made a mistake Friday night," and the Daily Universe makes a greater mistake in supporting him. Unlike the editor of the "Check Credentials," we shall sign our names to our comments, for we were there and saw the entire incident.

Social unit members discuss next year

by Karen Elder Universe Staff Writer

"Take a look at something else" could be the theme of the IOC's program for reorganizing the social units or absorbing them into other groups, according to Tillman Turley, IOC president for 1962-63.

FUTURE possibilities for the students who have been a part of social units were discussed at an IOC meeting conducted by Turley Thursday night.

Aid in constitution writing will be offered units that want to organize with new objectives, new constitutions and new names. A wide range of possibilities—athletics or service, for example—is open to these people. If they want to form new groups or reorganize old ones, said Turley.

Student government was offered during the discussion as a possible channel for leadership abilities of the social unit people.

ALL CAMPUS organizations not just those to be reorganized, will have to have constitutions reviewed by a special committee of student coordinator, the adviser, ASBYU president, IOC Council and a third faculty member. The committee is to have clauses limiting social life, emphasizing social life, lowering physical health, said Turley.

None of the plans is definite, because a new coordinator has not been selected to replace Paul Adair.

The greatest problem gaining units could be the loss of the present jobs, said Adair.

Some of the audience wisecracks about social life handled by the change for the summer, said others.

Continuous Progress Plan' educational system stresses self reliance, initiative, responsibility pared teaching materials which allow each student to progress scholastically at his own rate.

"IT IS wasteful and even cruel to make all students move at the same academic speed," said Dr. Read. "The Continuous Progress Plan provides the solution to the problem of the fast and the slow learner as well."

The system itself aims to develop self reliance, the ability to accept responsibility, and initiative in the student by placing within him the desire and responsibility to learn.

The new concept of education has been exceptionally well-received by most educators who have been introduced to it, Dr. Read said. He has been commissioned to supervise the designing and staffing of a complete new high school in La Puente, Calif.

THE ELEMENTARY section of the new school will strive for a balanced curriculum although giving emphasis to the basic tools of learning. The design of the classrooms, the methods of instruction and the curriculum materials will gradually show a modification as the emphasis changes from whole class instruction in the kindergarten to individualized instruction in the upper grades.

"Programmed learning materials are being designed for practically every subject at present," Dr. Read noted, and are arranged so that each student working individually can learn subjects by a series of very small steps.

AS STUDENTS progress in various degrees those who are ready for special orientation to introduce new materials are called into special session with the teacher in small groups. After these group sessions students return to their desks for individual work.

"On the high school level the same concept of programmed materials will be used but the school's physical arrangement becomes more complex. Students will no longer be grouped according to grade but to curriculum in various subjects," said Dr. Read.

SPECIAL rooms and areas will include: individual study areas, or carrel areas, testing rooms, teacher studios for group instruction, discussion rooms where students may gather to discuss subjects which Dr. Read stressed was an important element in the school program, special materials rooms and laboratories.

In addition to the regular teacher there will be assistant instructors to supervise the carrel areas and a secretary to schedule appointments with the teacher for group or individual work in the high school.

STUDENTS in elementary grades and in high school are tested frequently also on an individual basis. When a student feels he is ready to take a test in a given subject he schedules it with the secretary.

If he fails to achieve the quality standard set for his capabilities he must review the tested material until he is better prepared. This system fosters responsibility to duty and each student thus operates on a quantity and quality basis, Dr. Read said.

Under the new system teachers will be able to handle more students through modern classroom arrangement and electronic devices. Individual carrels equipped with television sets and communication systems are envisioned for the new plan schools, Dr. Read said.

The Onlooker

by William Lee

Have you ever thought what a weird world this would be if our actions and appearance during the day were the same as they are the first fifteen minutes in the morning?

Here are a few of the interesting sights you would expect to see:

ADRENALIN EXPLOSION
At the sound of the alarm, the "Adrenalin Explosion" flies out of bed like a hopped up Gaze. He opens all the windows, breathes in deeply, beats on his chest, giving out with sounds that would make Tarzan sound like Little Orphan Annie.

He then proceeds to skip around the room waking everyone. One of the newer roommates has a puzzled look on his face as he inquires, "Did anybody get the license plates?"

DEPRESSED ARISER
All the people are not so elated upon the birth of another day. Some of the male population are so depressed that they spend the first ten minutes debating whether to shave or cut their wrists.

Closely akin to the "Depressed Ariser" is the "Sore Head." This is usually a girl who has slept with her curlers on.

JACK BARBIT

Then there is the "Jack Barbit." At the sound alarm he bounds out of bed, steps on the alarm, resets it, five minutes and he is in bed. Five minutes he bounds out of bed, steps on the alarm and sets it again, five minutes and he is in bed until his roommate alarm-shocks that the day and quiver.

WEAK EYES

Then there is the "Weak Eyes" variety who wakes over the house with a half shut. One weak-eyed fellow who was tired and everything was okay when he found he had brushing his teeth with wing cream.

CONSCIENCE POOL
There are a few days have trouble convincing conscience that it is all sleep in. One conscience dreamed he got up and work. This seemed to conscience so he snored.

Another "Conscience" jumps out of bed at the sound of the alarm and telephone. Upon finding there, he hops back to bed.

MICROPHONIC SLEEP
This type sleeper is like a giant microphone. He picks up the tiniest little A spider scatching him would immediately wake causing him to shoot right, who's kicking me down!"

The sound of an alarm clock produces a that is almost unbearable. Microphonic sleeper will be by investing type alarm clock. When alarm goes off, the feathers jump out and a piece of fat.

I understand (according to the opposite) the girls have some unique appearances in.

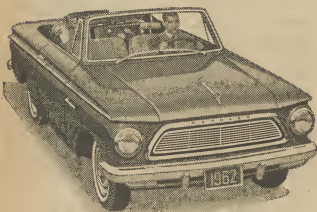

BLACK EYES

Most girls would like but not one around each appears that the eye is "black," "gunk," etc., produce two black eyes early morning hours.

HAIRDOGS (AND DOGS)
"Speaking of mop hair looks nice." The curling hairdos are really. If one of those Park ever gets wind of them, sunk.

I can see it all now. Hair styles of 1933 will be titled "The Wee Hours" would be the "Mop Hair" achieved by sleeping back all night. Then the "Ostrich Bouffant" achieved by putting your head pillow for eight hours.

Cowgirls, cowboys compete at BYU rodeo Friday, Saturday

Cowgirls and cowboys from 13 universities and colleges will compete in the BYU rodeo Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Provo rodeo grounds.

The girls will compete in barrel racing and goat tying. Goat tying is a new event and substitutes for calf roping and tying, a cowboy domain.

IT WORKS this way. The goat is staked out at one end of the arena. A girl rides up, dismounts, throws the goat to the ground and ties any three legs, the same way a calf is tied. The winner is the cowgirl who can do all this in the shortest time.

The BYU rodeo is one of many which schools in the Rocky Mountain Region of the Intercollegiate Rodeo Association conduct each year. The school with the most points in any five of the year's rodeos will represent the region in the national finals June 21-24 at Littleton, Colo.

ADMISSION to the rodeo will be $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children. Students with activity cards will be admitted free.

Reigning over the annual event will be Queen Dianne Cluff, a physical education major from Albuquerque, N.M. Her attendants will be Sandra Lamm, Grand Junction, Colo., and Margie Allen, Altadena, Calif.

BYU slates weekend rodeo action

by Doug Christensen
Universe Sports Writer

Rodeo fans will see some fast and exciting action at the annual BYU Stampede Friday and Saturday at the Provo Rodeo Arena.

TOP COWBOYS and cowgirls from the 14 colleges in the Rocky Mountain Region will be competing at the local show.

NCAA saddle bronc rider Shawn Davis, from Western State College of Education at Dillon, Mont., and Gary Murphy, the 1961 NCAA champion bull dogger from Montana State College at Bozeman, will be competing in their favorite events.

A NEW event to be seen at BYU will be goat tying.

Sharyl Hatcher, BYU's top cowgirl leads the region in this event with times of 14 seconds at both the Bozeman and Rexburg rodeos, will be out to strengthen her hold on first place.

Goat tying has long been a girls event in Texas but was first introduced to BYU contestants at the 1961 National finals at Sacramento. It has now become a standardized event.

THE OBJECT of the time event is for the cowgirl to ride from one end of the arena to the other, dismount, and tie any three legs of a staked out goat.

The BYU cowgirls are facing the possibility of returning to the NCAA finals again this year and will be working hard at their home show to improve their standing.

ANOTHER INFIELD event at the rodeo will be the wild cow race, one of the most hilarious and exciting rodeo events staged.

This event will be open to social or service units on campus or any other group which wishes to compete in the western show.

Three cowpokes, saddle a cow, in this event, and ride it to the end of the arena, unsaddle the Jersey and race back to the judges' stand.

OTHER EVENTS include the standard baerback and saddle bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, bull dogging, ribbon roping and the barrel race.

The BYU Rodeo, now seeing its tenth year as an intercollegiate spectacle gets under way under the lights at 8 p.m. Friday evening. It continues Saturday at 2 p.m.

BYU students and faculty will be admitted free with their activity cards.

Cat tennis team to meet Montana

by Tracy Wilson
Universe Sports Writer

BYU racket swingers and their coach Buck Dixon left Provo Wednesday for Missoula, Mont., where they will face last place Montana State U's Grizzlies in their final dual meet away from home this season.

THE COUGAR netters will meet the Silvertips on the hard courts Friday and the linksters will be kept busy by the "Tip" golf squad. The net team's first score was BYU 7, MSU 0.

Mentor Dixon's charges, fresh from a 5-2 victory over Utah State U. in Logan last week, will be seeking their fourth win of the league season against one loss.

THE LONE league loss on the 1962 sheet came at the hands of the Redskins from Salt Lake upon their first meetin' got the season. A repeat meet is scheduled to give the Cats their second swing at Coach Harry James' Utes on May 18 in Provo.

Netters accompanying Coach Dixon were Harold Turley, Gerry Still, Craig Smith, Bob Kroff, Leroy Peterson and Duane Ballard.

Sport squads on road

All of BYU's spring athletic squads will be on the road this week, with Montana being the destination of three of the teams.

ONLY THE track team, which meets Utah in Salt Lake City Saturday, stays in the Beehive State.

Coach Glen Tuckett's baseball nine is scheduled to meet the "Tips" in a double-header today, while the golf and tennis teams will also compete in Missoula.

Now we too must become part of those who pass a meal through these portals and become one of the alumni of our revered alma mater.

IT HAS TAKEN TIME, and we have seen some teams and some not-so-great teams, but, they were a team, and for this they got our cheers, and an occasional boo.

Take the 56-57 basketball team, for instance. All-American Tom Steinke and All-American John Reame came through to help out the Cougars in their personal as did Lynn Thacker.

THEN THERE WAS John Nicol and a freshman rewrote a few of the records as a frosh player, and then a sophomore: Bob Skousen.

Take two years for a mission call and it seems to keep track of all that goes on, but some names come to mind. It seems to us that we enjoyed seeing the name of Alma Mater in the New York Sun at the little merchant's store in Montreal perhaps even a little than we do now.

SOME OF THE other years haven't given us a chance to cheer about except for some individual play on the part of Gary Earnest who ran the Utes ragged with that two-handed set shot, and beat them almost single hand along with some help from "Big Dave" Eastin.

Along the football trail there is a string of memories some happy, some sad, but ones which will always stay with us as we go our way out in the world, even though we be at other universities.

REMEMBER THE Utah State game in Provo which had a near riot on the field, and Hal Kopp dubbed the ers "His Fighting Missionaries?" And how about the we almost beat Utah, and the last time we did beat it. We hope you'll never forget. We won't.

graduates to be honored

Emucki, professor of history and director of the Honors Program at the University of Utah, will be guest speaker at the Honors Night at 8 p.m. today in the 22 Smith Family Living Center. Honors graduates seniors will be honored and officers for next year will be chosen for the Honors Club according to Dr. Emucki, chairman.

LUU has taught Honors students and classics at St. George's in Winnipeg, Canada. He served as professor and assistant dean of the College of Letters and Sciences at the University of Utah. Dr. Lucki has been in the history of the University of Utah. During the past year he has been director of the Honors Program at U of U.

His articles have been in various scholarly journals.

He has interviewed faculty members and students are invited to attend this program, Dr. Campbell said. Light refreshments will be served.

Applications due for award

A scholarship is available for a woman student registered in the College of Business. Application blanks may be picked up in 205 Knight Bldg.

Sponsored by the Utah County Chapter of Executives' Secretaries, Inc., the award is for $280, for tuition and fees next school year, according to Mrs. Ethelyn Taylor, business education and office management professor.

Deadline for turning in applications is Wednesday.

Married students ready for social

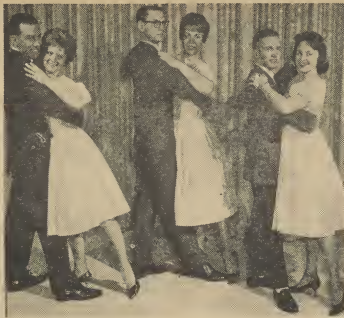

The lawns south of the Smith Fieldhouse will be the scene Saturday of the Married Students' Hweedown.

Students and their better halves should bring one casserole dish suitable for a ranch pot-luck meal to the area at noon, said Ann Edwards, co-chairman.

COUPLES SHOULD bring salads, vegetables, or desserts. The Associated Men Students will provide fried chicken, bread, butter and drinks, she explained.

Couples are encouraged to bring the kiddies. They can be corralled in the "colt pasture," which will be looked after by BYU service unit coeds, Mrs. Edwards continued.

After the pot-luck dinner, married couples can participate in any of the varied contests and sports. There will be bicycle races, a pie eating contest and several special skill tests. Slo-pitch softball and soccer softball are also on the day's agenda, she said.

DANCERS ARE READY—MIA dancers preparing for the dance festival May 12 are Bruce Carter and Jackie Putman, left; Bill Smith and Sharel Anderson, Larry Stokes and Roma Lynn Christensen.

Dance variety set for festival

A dance festival Saturday will climax Mutual Improvement Association activities for the three LDS Stakes.

Members of the MIA have been practicing all year for the festival. It will begin at 8 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse, and the public is invited. There is no admission charge.

TWO ORIGINAL numbers, a cha cha and a swing, will be performed by threesomes, two girls and one boy. Bill E. Smith, Second Stake dance director and chairman of the event, did the choreography.

An all-girl waltz will follow to the tune of "Fascination." Couples will dance an original western swing, "Satan Takes a Holiday."

Originals, danced to the rhythm of the "Syncopated Clock," will feature several BYU wards. Each ward group does its own choreography. All participating groups perform on the floor at one time, doing different dances to the same tune.

"THE WHOLE thing resembles a three-ring circus" commented Mr. Smith.

Specialty numbers will be presented by the yesterday as Folk Dancers, the BYU Dance Precision Team and Orchestras.

News can be funny

MEMPHIS, TENN. (UPI)—A man told authorities yesterday he pulled a switch on one of the city's new fire alarm boxes because he thought it regulated a pedestrian traffic light.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Host Mike Wallace, taping a segment of the "PM" television show, asked actor Burt Lancaster to comment on reports he has a quick temper.

Lancaster got up and left the studio in a huff.

Noted Authority Says: "Check Out in Style This Year"

Dr. Delbert Zug, famous lecturer, explorer, and clothes authority, was met yesterday as he was checking out of the library. Dr. Zug was asked several questions concerning his many experiences, but most of all, people were interested in what he was wearing. "I'm glad you asked that," replied Dr. Zug. "I constantly receive compliments on my new Cricketer Sportcoat. It is a spring-weight 100% worsted traditional from Shriver's Varsity Shop. Shopping at Shriver's has always been one of my greatest experiences. I can always find the exact style, color, and even pattern from their very large selection of suits and sportcoats. . . and from only $82.50. Yes, great experience, great experience."

Thank you, Dr. Zug, but as men, we already know all about Cricketer and Shriver's and agree with you 100%. But what we are wondering is what you are wearing on your face?
